Claim Objections

1. Claim 26 is objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c), as being of improper dependent form for failing to further limit the subject matter of a previous claim. Applicant is required to cancel the claim(s), or amend the claim(s) to place the claim(s) in proper dependent form, or rewrite the claim(s) in independent form. It seems that claim 26 should depend from claim 23 rather than claim 13. The claim thus has been examined based on its depending from claim 23.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over admitted prior art (APA) in view of Ohnishi (Pub. # 20040050176).

Applicant admits the known device teach a flowmeter having first and second ultrasonic wave generating and detecting piezoelectric devices that alternately transmit and receive ultrasonic waves and the time being determined between each transmitter and receiver and based upon the difference the flow rate being determined. The only inventive feature in the instant invention is the use of the shock-wave (Oscillation Wave) generating piezoelectric element. Ohnishi teaches the use of oscillation wave generating and receiving piezoelectric devices in the same arrangements as the APA positions the ultrasonic piezoelectric transducers. It would have been obvious to a person having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the oscillation wave generating and receiving piezoelectric elements for the known ultrasonic wave generating and receiving piezoelectric elements since such are mere alternatives that would function equally in the environment of measuring flow in a conduit without being in direct contact with the fluid. As to the impulse voltage with a steep rising edge and steep falling edge, it would have been an inherent characteristics of the oscillating wave compared to the ultrasonic wave.

Conclusion

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Brown et al. (3,981,191) teaches use of ultrasonic transducers positioned at an upstream and downstream location and a switching device for switching the transducers from transmitting to receiving and vice versa.
